But I am convinced that the Ward Family, p. 12, has here fallen into error, for on p. 23 it makes Obadiah, son of Richard, married on the same day, the same Joanna, that, on the former page, was given to his uncle of the same name.

Notes for SAMUEL WARD:

Per SAVAGE'S Genealogical Dictionary of New England Settlers, v. 4

WARD, SAMUEL, Marlborough, son of William of the same, born probably in England, took oath of fidelity 1652; was captain and representative 1679 and 1680; married 6 June 1667, Sarah, daughter of John Howe of the same, had Sarah, born 22 April 1668; Joseph, 1670; Elizabeth 1672; Mary, 1676; Samuel, March 1678; Bethia, 25 May 1681; and Daniel, 1687, died at 13 years and his wife died 11 August 1707. His will of 22 May 1727, near 2 years before his death was disputed by the heirs on account of most of the estate being given to son Samuel. He had second wife Elizabeth who outlived him. Conjecture is wholly unable to explain who she was.

From "The William Ward Genealogy", 1925, pp. 70:

Samuel's house-lot (by reversion from his brother Richard-- see Chapter VIII) was west of the Indian line, and probably near the old John Gleason place. His contract with his parents and his standing under the will of his father are told near the end of Chapter X.

Under him, succeeding his father, the original "William Ward" house (i.e., the remaining structure on the original site) was frequently the place of the midweek church meetings and also the recognized abode of visiting and temporary ministers. During the intermittent French and Indian wars from 1689 to 1713, it was a garrison-house as during King Philip's War.

In his will dated May 22, 1727, Samuel Ward says he is "well stricken in years and crazy in body, but of perfect mind, and memory," His will was contested on Probate Court, December 19, 1729, by all his children and heirs (except his son Samuel, the chief beneficiary in virtue of a concurrent agreement to care for him and his wife during their lives) on the ground that he was crazy in mind as well as in body. At length the heirs agreed among themselves touching his will, and desired the judge to approve it.

Elizabeth Howe of Marlborough, the granddaughter of John Howe, the first white settler of Marlborough, was at the house visiting Mrs. Joslin, who was a sister of hers. She, with one of the Joslin children, was carried into captivity. The child was murdered in the wilderness, but Mrs. Howe was kept as a captive for four years, when she was redeemed by the government. After she returned to her friends, she was married to Thomas Keyes to whom she was engaged before her capture. Notes for ABNER WARD:

From "The William Ward Genealogy: The History of the Descendants of William Ward of Sudbury, Mass., 1638 - 1925", p. 191

He spent his boyhood in Somers where he is said to have been bound out to a farmer after his mother's second marriage. He next appears at Westfield, Mass., as a private in a company of minute-men commanded by Lieutenant John Shepard, which marched April 20, 1775, in response to the alarm of April 19. From that date he was almost continuously in the army until the end of the Revolutionary War. Except three months of 1775 in Captain Warham Park's company, Timothy Danielson's regiment, he served most of the time as private and corporal in Captain Lebbeus Ball's company, William Shepard's regiment. His army knapsack, wooden canteen, some grapeshot, and a curious three-pronged screw-driver that he carried in several campaigns have descended to the possession of his grandson, David Ward. At the close of the war, Abner went to his brother Peter's at Hopkinton, Mass., and the next year married his brother's wife's sister. From Massachusetts they moved to Rupert, Vt., and then to New York State where they lived for a time near Schuylerville, Saratoga County. They came to Scipio, NY in 1811, and in the following year he purchased the farm in eastern Scipio two miles south of Ensenore which is today known as the "Old Ward Homestead" (see further under Hiram Ward and his sons William W, and David

Abner is buried in the old family cemetery on an adjoining farm owned (In 1925) by Mrs. Jennie Ward, widow of Abner's grandson, Charles Ward. His widow lies with the Beardsleys (the family of their daughter Harriet's husband) in the North Lansing, NY, Cemetery. Her family Bible is (as of 1925) owned by Frederick A. Ward. It's pages bear evidence to its daily use for many years. Some of them are nearly worn through.

Obituary from "Nashville Daily Republican Banner" on August 5, 1840:

DIED,

On Sunday the 26th of July, at 3o'clock, MOSES FISK, Esq. late resident of Hilham, Ten.----aged 80 years, 1 month and 14 days.

from the "Cookeville Citizen" December 8, 1964:

"Lore and Legend of the Upper Cumberlands" by E. G. Rogers

Fisk Was Great Mathematician

Moses Fisk once planned his "Trans-Alleghenia" empire to be located at Hilham and including the surrounding area. His project was not unlike that envisioned by Thomas Hughes at Rugby, Tennessee, except reversed in the matter of time.

Born in Grafton, Massachusetts in 1759, graduated from Dartmouth in 1786 where he taught until 1795, Fisk then came to Tennessee in the interest of land settlements. As land representative for one of the two agencies receiving large grants for the settlement of the Cumberland valley, he soon began to acquire extensive tracts of land of his own.

His holdings within about four years extended from Smith County to the Cherokee Indian line about three and one-half miles east of Livingston. He was employed by the Storm Agency out of New York which extended further grants to John Donelson and others.

As each of the counties, Smith in 1789, Jackson in 1801, and then Overton were carved out of Sumner, Fisk played a very personal role as a friend to the leaders concerned with the organization of each of the respective counties. He settled in Overton and established Hilham in 1803.

Hilham was located on a creek which flows into Roaring River and the Cumberland and was therefore located upon the reservation of North Carolina for her soldiers of the Continental line in the Revolution. Fisk therefore requested and received a renewal of his grant.

He began immediately to survey and build roads leading into his empire. He first constructed the "Meridian Road" which is known as the Fisk Road as it leads into Cookeville. He opened another road from Sparta to Hilham, and later extended this road on to Burkesville, Kentucky. Another was constructed from Hilham "to the highlands south of Roaring River." He was surveyor in laying out the Walton Road in 1799-1801. He had planned another road connecting Hilham with Jackson County near Fort Blount.

Fisk was one of the greatest mathematicians and surveyors of his day, or perhaps of any period. As a business man he was a great promoter and organizer. In education he was an astute scholar. He and his friend Sampson Williams of Smith County decided to build a school at Hilham. This may have been a part of his earlier dream of Trans-Alleghenia. Together they established Hilham Academy, the first school for girls south of the Ohio River. Williams [unreadable] contributed 2000 acres of land toward its establishment.

It is said that the school never had a very large enrollment. Financially able parents were a bit skeptical about sending their daughters to school into what was then considered a frontier wilderness. And those less distant found frontier travel difficult.

The original structure was destroyed by fire in 1830. The buildings were restored, but the administration of the school passed into other hands as Fisk himself died in 1843.

There was an effort to re-establish the school as the Hilham Academy in 1902, as a memorial objective. The school was to be non-sectarian, coeducational, and college preparatory. It operated as such for about twenty years or about 1925 since when it has been occupied as a residence. This is the building which presently stands to the right of the road about one mile out of Hilham as one approaches that town from Cookeville.

The empire of Fisk began to crumble before it matured. The great rush of frontier settlement may have been a factor. Because of his skill as a mathematician and surveyor, much of his time soon became involved in this type of work, for which he accumulated quite a fortune in lands. But it was when he began to go into the merchantile business on the Cumberland as Jackson and Winchester had done around Nashville that his fortunes began decline.

from "The Chattanooga Sunday Times" January 3, 1933, page 11:

Leaves From The Family Tree

Moses Fisk, Who Located in That Part of Smith County Which Later Became Overton County, Laid Out Hilham, Overton's Oldest Town, in 1805, and Enndowed Fisk Female Academy, One of the First Institutions of Its Kind in America.

by Penelope Johnson Allen, State Chairman of Genealogical Records, Tennessee Society, D.A.R.

Moses Fisk, pioneer educator and surveyor of Tennessee, was a native of Grafton, Mass., where he was born in the year 1759. He was the son of a Revolutionary soldier and a descendant of the Fiske family of Massachusetts, which traces its lineage through Nathan Fiske, who was born at Weybread, county of Suffolk, England, and emigrated to America in 1640, locating at Watertown, in the colony of Massachusetts. Nathan Fiske was the son of Jeffery Fiske, who was descended from Symon Fiske, lord of the manor of Standbaugh [Staudhaugh], Suffolk, in the time of King Henry VIII, and the line is traced on back to Daniel Fiske, of Laxfield, Suffolk, 1208.

The name of the Tennessee family is usually spelled "Fisk" without the final "e," although it appears as "Fiske" on the tombstones of some of the children of the pioneer Moses Fisk.

Moses Fisk attended Dartmouth college, from which institution he was graduated in 1786, and from 1788 to 1795 he was employed as a tutor for his alma mater.

As early as July 1, 1796, President John Wheelock, of Dartmouth, was trying to interest the Society for Propagating Christian Knowledge, of Scotland, in establishing a mission among the Cherokee Indians, and Moses Fisk came to Tennessee in that year to further the plans of his preceptor.

In Philadelphia, he met William Blount, the newly elected senator from the new state, and secured a letter of introduction from Blount to Gov. Sevier. After visiting the country in the west, he returned to New England to further the plans of President Wheelock.

In 1799 Fisk was back in Tennessee. He was especially skilled in mathematics, and his knowledge of surveying secured him employment in laying off many of the boundaries of lands that were granted by the state.

Moses Fisk located in that part of Smith county which in time became Overton county, and he did much towards the development of that section of Tennessee. Upon the formation of Smith county the first court was held on Dec. 16, 1799, and the oath of office to officiating magistrates was administered by Moses Fisk, who was appointed clerk pro tem.

Not long after his arrival in Tennessee it is said that Moses Fisk was offered the presidency of the University of North Carolina, through Mr. Blount, but declined because of his interest in pursuing the plan for education on the frontier.

Through Blount's influence, Moses Fisk entered the legal profession and, although he never practiced law, in 1803 he was authorized by the state legislature to compile the laws of this state and those of North Carolina in force in the state. His compiliation was never published, as the work of Judge Haywood appeared before his was ready for submission to the legislature.

Under the act of 1801 authorizing the governor to appoint three commissioners, "one of whom shall be a mathematician capable of taking latitude," to settle and locate the true boundary line between this and the state of Virginia, Fisk was appointed by Gov. Roane "commissioner and mathematician." And again in 1817 he was requested by Gov. Joseph McMinn to act as mathematician, to determine the true point of latitude taken on the northern boundary of the state, "with a view to aid in the adjustment of differences between us and the Kentuckians."

For many years Moses Fisk served as a member of the court in Overton county, where he was regarded as one of the outstanding citizens. He invested largely in land and at the time of his death is said to have owned about 30,000 acres in Overton, White, Jackson and the present county of Clay.

Celina, one of the most important trading and shipping towns in the upper Cumberland region, and the present county seat of Clay county, was named for Celina, the oldest daughter of Moses Fisk.

Hilham, the oldest town in Overton county, was laid out by Moses Fisk in 1805 on one of his choice boundaries, and he spent largely of his means towards its development. He laid out a system of turnpike roads centering in the town and, together with his friend, Sampson Williams, endowed a female school, known as Fisk Female academy, which was chartered by the legislature in 1808. This was one of the first institutions of its kind in America.

The existence of the Female academy appears to have been shortened and it was followed by a school of boys which flourished up until a short time before the death of Mr. Fisk. Many men who later became distinguished in public life in Tennessee studied with the pioneer educator, and on the hill across the road from his house the remains of the old brick academy may still be seen.

Among his students were Samuel and Hopkins Turney, both later judges and men of distinction; and the Hon. James A. Whiteside, who contributed to the early development of Chattanooga, was another who was trained by Mr. Fisk. Gen. E. W. Ripley, one of his pupils, in 1817 wrote that the precepts which Fisk had afforded were responsible for his success in life.

Moses Fisk was a great educator and his influence lived in the lives of the many young men who afterward became distinguished in the service of their country.

In addition to his activities as a teacher, Fisk also found time for writing. In the American Historical Magazine for January, 1897, is published Fisk's "Historical Sketch of Tennessee," with an introductory biography by the Hon. A. V. Goodpasture. This sketch was first published in the Massachusetts Historical Collections, Second Series, Vol. 7, under date of July 1, 1816, and is one of the earliest accounts of the historical beginnings of the state. Mr. Fisk also assisted J. Morse whose geography he revised for this part of the country. He was a member of the American Antiquarian society of Worcester, Mass., and a paper from his pen on the antiquities of Tennessee was published in the first volume of its transactions in 1820.

MOSES FISK, born 1759, Grafton, Mass.; died 1843, Hilham, Overton county, Tennessee, married Nancy Shultz, who survived her husband many years and after her death was buried by his side in the graveyard at Hilham. Plain slabs of stone, inscribed "Moses Fisk" and "Nancy Fisk" mark the graves of the pioneer educator and his wife. Many others of this family are buried on adjoining lots.

George Christian was the son of George Christian, a pioneer settler of Overton county, who was born in 1767 and died in Overton county in 1868. George Christian, Jr. served as sheriff and three terms as clerk of the circuit court of Overton county. This family lived at one time in Livingston and later located on a 400-acre tract of land adjoining Hilham which was given by Moses Fisk to his daughter Celina.....(more later) from 1906 Miner's History of Richland County, by Judge James H. Miner:

CHARLES J. DANFORTH, who is now living retired on his fine homestead farm, in the town of Forest, has had a somewhat varied and eventful career, having followed different occupations in many different states of the Union and having served his country with marked gallantry as a soldier in the Civil War. He has gained success through his own efforts, is one of the substantial citizens of Richland county and has the unqualified esteem of his fellow men. Mr. Danforth was born in the city of Providence, R. I., on Nov. 28, 1842, and is a son of Charles and Julia F. (Ward) Danforth, the former of whom was born in Providence, R. I., in 1815, and the latter in Massachusetts, in 1819. As a young man the father went to Massachusetts, where he became superintendent of a cotton factory. After his marriage he returned to his native city, where he was engaged in teaching school for a number of years. In 1849, he was of the intrepid argonauts who made the journey to California and he was thus a member of the immortal "Forty-niners" who initiated the gold-mining industry in that state. He remained about two years and then returned to his home in Providence. About June, 1852, he removed with his family to Meigs County, Ohio, the subject of this sketch having been nine years of age at the time. In 1864 he removed from Ohio to Mattoon, Ill., and Dec. 24, 1866, he took up his residence at Lone Rock, Richland County, Wis., where he conducted a wagon shop for the ensuing four years. He next located at Charles City, Iowa, where he made his home for some time, passing the closing years of his life in his native city of Providence, where he died July 5, 1901. His wife died in 1904, at Charles City, Iowa. Of their five children three are living. He was first a Whig and later a Republican in politics and was a member of the Protestant Episcopal church, his wife holding membership in the Methodist church. He was a son of Walter R. Danforth, who was a native of Providence and a son of Job Danforth, who was a soldier in the Continental line in the War of the Revolution and who died at the patriarchal age of ninety-seven years. Walter R. Danforth was educated for the legal profession but never followed the same. For many years he was editor of a paper in Providence, and his son Charles learned the printer's trade. The maternal grandparents of the subject of this review were Samuel and Nancy Ward, and both passed their entire lives in Massachusetts, Mr. Ward having been a shoemaker by trade. Charles J. Danforth, whose name initiates this article, received his early education in his native city and thereafter he attended school at intervals in Meigs County, Ohio, where he assisted his father in clearing a farm of 200 acres, upon which was also operated a sawmill. Oct. 8, 1861, he enlisted as a private in Company C, Sixty-third Ohio Volunteer infantry, with which he was in active service until about seven months before the close of the war, when he was taken ill and incapacitated for duty, receiving his honorable discharge when the war came to an end in victory for the Union Arms. He took part in many important engagements, including the battle of Island No. 10 and the siege of Corinth. He is an appreciative member of the Grand Army of the Republic. After the war he joined his parents in Illinois and accompanied them on their removal to Richland County, Wis., in December of the following year, being associated with his father in the work of the wagon-shop about four years. He later became superintendent of a hoop factory at Lavelle, Sauk County, holding this position two years, passing the next year in Hall County, Neb. He thereafter was engaged in work as a carpenter and painter at Spencer, Iowa, for four years, then settling in Faulk County, S. D., where he became the owner of 480 acres of land, to the cultivation of which he devoted his attention for the ensuing decade, at the expiration of which, in 1892, he returned to Richland County, Wis., and bought a farm of 110 acres of M. V. B. Richards, in the town of Forest, also buying three acres of land in the village of Viola. He also conducted a general store in Viola for two years, thereafter giving his attention to the management of his farm until 1904, since which time he has lived essentially retired, though remaining on his farm, which is one of the well improved places of this part of the county, the farm being rented. In politics Mr. Danforth is aligned in the ranks of the Republican party but he has never sought office, though he served as an officer of his school district while residing in South Dakota. In December, 1875, Mr. Danforth wedded Miss Anzonette R. Davidson, who was born in Indiana, in 1854, a daughter of Samuel and Sarah Davidson, who came to Sauk County, Wis., in 1867, later removing to Faulk

County, S. D.; the father passed the closing days of his life at Ladysmith, Wis., where he died in 1903 and where his widow still maintains her home. In conclusion is entered brief record concerning the children of Mr. and Mrs. Danforth: Clyde, who was born Sept. 28, 1876, is a successful merchant at Viola; Audrey Luella, who was born Dec. 16, 1882, was graduated in the Viola high school and now assists her brother in his store; Eula F., who was born Sept. 18, 1885, and who was educated in the public schools of Viola, remains at the parental home, as does also Leo C., who was born Nov. 15, 1894.
